DIVORCE MILL'S BUSY DAY

DESERTION AND NON-SUPPORT PRINCIPAL ALLEGATION.

Theckston Case Has a Bit of Salaciousness About It - Youthful House-breaker-The Bunting Case Comes On For Trial, After the Separation Business Is Ended.

Judge Hiles had a merry old day of ft yesterday in running the divorce mill. Twelve pairs were separated, and twe more ordered to appear before a ref-

It was a full house which greeted the court when he mounted his woolsack yesterday morning. There were many plaintiffs present, and corroborating witnesses galore. They were all sorts and kinds, from frail-looking ladies to ladles who were not frail-looking. Some were handsome and others pretty, while as few were neither, Some were emo-tional and others calm. In all cases heard, decree was entered by default, there being no decease, save in the ac-tion of Theckston vs. Theckston, a motion to modify a decree previously made.

This day's work does not complete the task the Judge has. There are nine more billed for today, while for Saturday five are on the shae. It will be a busy time all around.

The court rushed business when he got started. It was evident that his honor did not desire to dual or the dare for them. The existent produced friends who swore his regulation was good for chastily, and then the case was taken under advisement until Saturday, while Mrs. The ckston was fed sobbing and shricking from the room, having an attack of hysteric which broke out when the proceedings closed.

SEPARATED FROM SADIE.

Another case which had a degree of salaciousness about it was that of Francis Mificaell vs Sadie Mitchell. Francis testified that he married the girl in San Francisco, in 1895. After coming to this city Sadie got frisky and went out with other men, and in two instances committed a violation of the seventh commandment, the coorday ments being named. The husbant was able to give dates and places, and last estimant in relation to character as corroborated by Police Officer Taibot. It appearing that Sad.: is new in a maison de joie in Haliey, the divorce was granted. One child, Harvey F., aged 2, was adopted by Mrs. Mary A. Shafer immediately failowing the granting of the decree, the father consenting.

Maria Nordnaist had a sed story to tell. She weithed Neiss Nordnaist on March 27, 1888, and four days later her liene land said "April 199" to her and left. Since that time he has failed to provide for her and the tree children she had by a former husband, and she has been compelled to seek tharly from her friends. Others corrobor-SEPARATED FROM SADIE.

Lina Jensen related a story concern-ing her husband, Hyrum S. Jenset, Lina Jensen related a story concerning her husband, Hyrum S. Jensen, who is an able-bodied man, not afraid of work at all, although he would rather not mix with it, according to statements made. Lina and her nusband had a bad habit of which she could not break him. He would go away in the summer time, when it was warm, and return when cold weather set in, to live with her and cat up what she had accumulated during the sairry season. She objected to this arrangement. A ripple of laughter was caused

OTHER CASES.

The woes of Mrs. Belie Randrili, who seeks a divorce from her busiand, Nathan Randrill, on the grounds of drunk-enness of an intense character and failure to provide for herself and one child, was referred to Clerk Frair to take testimony and report at an early date. Camilla Young obtained a decree from William H. Young, on the grounds of desertion and non-support. The two children were given her to care for. There will be no alimony in this case, as William is not a man much given to making money for alimony or other purposes.

The textimoty developed the fact that Mrs. Theekston, since the divorce, has become a scarlet woman, and has pited her vocation in this city, Mercurand Rangham. Detective Sheets and another officer were about to be sworn to prove this point, when the attorney for the woman dechared he would adonly she had been arrested and paid.

On his cross-examination, Attorney Harrington made a vigorous attempt to shake the evidence given, in which he was given ald and confort by the former spouse of the witness, who persisted in audibly contradicting everything Theekston said, until the court was constrained to tell her she would have to hold her tongue. The children are listed that the boy some books with please of the was not a fit person, in this judgment, to have them, and he wesperfectly able and more than willing to care for them. San Francisco, Nov. 16.—The steamer Moana, which arrived from the Antipodes from Honolulu today, brings the following Somoan news to the Associated Press:

The question of a king is exercising the minds of Samoans to an almost unprecedented extent, and candidates for the thankless office are as thick as autumn leaves, but there are but two logical candidates. The chiefs representing the whole of the Samoan people are now considering who shall finally be thrust forward to guard the destines of the people. It looks now as if there would be two aspirants for the office—the representative of the Malleton family. If the two factions cannot and the representative of the Malleton family. If the two factions cannot agree on a king, it is thought that firstead of resorting to the customary force of arms, the leaders will be induced to lodge the settlement with the chief justice, according to the Berlin act.
